

organic skincare

Organic products are filling beauty counter shelves like chocolate at Easter. Here are three favourites:

With the amount of pollutants in the air, gone are the days when you could exfoliate once a week. To make sure your skin doesn't dry out (so you can use daily), this Juice Beauty Exfoliating Cleanser ($39; 1800 630 056) is a soap-free formula that blends certified organic, antioxidant-rich white grape and pineapple juices with aloe vera, grapeseed oil and dissolving jojoba beads.

This Sukin Hydrating Mist Toner ($9.95, 1300 858 898) is a gentle, alcohol-free mist to help soothe, tone and cool tired skin. Chuck it in your handbag for a long flight or keep it in the top drawer at work for a quick mid-afternoon pick me up. And, in support of Keep Australia Beautiful Week (August 23-29), Sukin is donating $1 from every sale to the Keep Australian Beautiful campaign.

This Y Natural 502 Hydrate Antioxidant Moisturiser ($80; ynatural.com.au) is loaded with free-radical-fighting ingredients that guard our skin from the damaging effects of wind and sun. With high concentrations of potent ginkgo biloba, rosemary leaf, olive leaf, vitamin C and green tea, it's particularly beneficial for those with oily skin. Plus, all Y Natural ingredients are 100 percent Australian.

KEEPING HAIR STRAIGHT

Beauty Editor Lindsay Lister-Jones road-tests the latest celebrity hair trend.

Gossip Girl star Blake Lively swears by keratin treatments.

IN THE hairdresser's chair, I'm multitasking. My mobile is on vibrate, my coffee is scalding, and I sip a strong black coffee to lose myself in Lindsay Lister-Jones' latest debacle while waiting for my hair through a trashy magazine. I can't wait to hit the Oscar party (oscaroscar.com.au) with my Keratin Taming treatment (prices start at $350). My hairdresser, Obi, lathered my hair with keratin treatment, which is a protein occurring naturally in hair and then "sealed" my hair cuticle with a hot iron as I waited with bated breath to see the results. The whole process wasn't really relaxing and my hair looked okay but, it was only a few weeks later that the real magic was revealed as the hair compliments started rolling in. But now, I'm just nervous of what people are going to say when my hair returns to its usually dull state (in 3 months time). Actually, I do know: they'll say nothing and that will be even worse!
